Design Plan Consult: During Your Session

If you are wondering what to expect during your design session, we've got some more information here:

- ✓ Questions. Lots of them. Prep work is really helpful! By now you should have had a chance to review the checklist of items that you should consider in advance of your sessions. Really important. If you missed it, you'll find the link to it on the Consult webpage.
- ✓ Big picture goals & desires. While we will consider lots of different topics during the session, the goal is to get a really solid, big picture view of what a successful design truly is for you. We are trying to get very clear and concise and specific, but we are NOT making detailed design decisions by and large. That's the next step.
- ✓ A lot in 2 hours. It's a fairly limited timeframe to cover this much – but it's doable and more than well worth it. Again, this means no time for making detailed design decisions at this point.
- ✓ Lots of notetaking (by me, not you!).
- ✓ Before photos. I'll plan to get a few "before photos" of your space. This is useful for referral during the remainder of the project when we might not be on site, as well as for that exciting before and after comparison later.

Design Plan Consult: After Your Session

That was fun! What's next:

- ✓ A Design Plan Document. I will take a few days to pull together everything we spoke about into a 100% custom Design Plan document.
- ✓ Options for Next Steps. I will email that Plan to you and include options for how to get more help on the next steps.

- ✓ Decision on how to proceed. Then it's time to make this project come to life. You decide when and how much help you need, if any. Even if it takes you a while to get all the wheels in motion, you can always give us a call along the way for a little boost. Or, just have us work with you from day 1 to help bring it all to life!
- ✓ After Photos. With your permission, we'd love the chance to come back and photograph the result – and consider doing a website blog feature on your project.

We can't wait to get started! Every big journey begins with a single step.
